

We Support Five Babies Who Have Lost Their Mothers

The baby victims of deforestation, loss of habitat and palm oil cultivation

Orangutan babies are completely helpless and need our help if they are to survive.

We take comfort that they are being cared for around-the-clock by dedicated 'nannies', who teach them everything they need to know for when it's time to be released back to the wild in places not threatened by people.

Babies are often found beside their mothers, and cling on desperately. But unfortunately, they are now alone in the world and in need of lots of love and care.

At 'Beauty for a Cause' we support five baby orangutans by sending off monthly donations to help with their care.

We also donate a percentage of all salon transactions, and sell charity merchandise to help various organisations in their important rescue and rehabilitation work.
